28th INFANTRY CALLED TO ACTIVE SERVICE

Co. I To Be Home Monday For Brief Period Before Leaving For Camp Atterbury, Indiana

Indiantown Gap, Aug. 2.—(P)—Pennsylvania's 28th Infantry Division, units of which have been in every American war in history, today faced a new call to active service.

The National Guard unit, just beginning a two-week training period here, yesterday was ordered to groom itself for active service within 30 days.

Maj. Gen. Daniel A. Strickler, commanding officer of the Division, immediately cut short the training session. It will end next Sunday with the traditional "governor's review" of the troops by Gov. James H. Duff.

Strickler announced at a meeting of division officers last night that Gen. Mark Clark, chief of the Army Field Forces also will be on hand for the review.

The 10,000 men will leave on Monday for their homes by train and motor convoy. Within a month they'll be off to Camp Atterbury, Ind., for additional training.

During the time remaining at Indiantown Gap military reservation, only the "most essential exercises" will be undertaken, said Gen. Strickler, he said the less important ones will be dropped.

There will be no new restrictions on the troops while here, Strickler said, adding, that "the usual number of passes will be issued nightly."

Strickler, who is Pennsylvania's lieutenant-governor, is one of many men in the division who hold prominent civilian positions.

Col. Kenneth W. Momeyer, who commands the 112th Infantry Regiment and who is Erie's city finance director, said he will do "like other public officials have done when called up in other wars," that is, take a military leave.

That attitude appeared mirrored around camp. When the news of the call to active service broke, the troops gathered in small groups to discuss the possibilities of what would happen.

No great surprise was evident for most of the men more or less expected the call. Last night, they jammed the reservation's telephone lines for hours conversing with family and friends at home.

During the waiting period at home, the division will recruit new members to expand to its full strength. What its full strength is cannot be disclosed for security reasons.

Although the 28th Division was founded in Oct. 1917, some of its units trace unbroken lineage from the Revolutionary War. The Pennsylvania National Guard, with the 28th Division as its largest component, lists Nov. 21, 1747, as its birthday.

The division gained the admiration of General John Pershing as the "Iron Division" in World War One. In World War Two, the Germans came to fear it as the "Bloody Bucket"—in response to the Red Keystone shoulder patch of its soldiers.

MALIK LOSES IN ATTEMPT TO BAR CHINA

Soviet Delegate to Return Today for Another Try To Bar Nationalist Government

CALLS U. S. AGRESSOR

Lake Success, Aug. 2.—(P)—Beaten in his first attempt as security council president to oust Nationalist China, Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik comes back for another try today.

He was defeated decisively, 8 votes to 3 but he didn't walk out yesterday.

Instead, he remained to trade bitter words with U. S. and Chinese delegates in a long, wrangling session, and to accuse the U. S. of leading "naked aggression" against Asian peoples in Korea, China, Indochina and the Philippines.

The fact that he stayed, instead of walking out on the Chinese question as he did when he was beaten last January, strengthened a belief that Russia is back in the U. N., at least for the rest of Malik's August term as president.

He called another meeting today to continue a wrangle over what should be on the agenda. Yesterday's session was devoted entirely to jousting over the unseating of the Chinese Nationalists and over what subjects should be discussed, and in what order.

Malik wound up yesterday's three-hour council meeting, that marked the end of his seven-month boycott, by attacking the U. N. Korean action. He asserted that peace in Korea must be considered along with the question of seating the representative of the Communist Chinese regime.

House Moves to Vote Executive Broader Authority to Regulate Domestic Economy

Washington, Aug. 2.—(P)—The house was in a mood today to vote President Truman broader controls than he has requested over the domestic economy, but was undecided how to go about it.

As a final vote neared on the "defense production act of 1950," there was strong sentiment to add to the priorities and allocation authority Mr. Truman wants, to include power to impose rationing and to peg prices and wages.

The decision on the extent of power to be voted, subject to senate approval, may come late today, when the bill is slated for a final house vote. It may be put off until Friday.

Republicans generally are backing the drive to give the president more than he has requested. Their views are embodied in a substitute bill introduced by Rep. Kunkle (R-Pa.).

The Kunkle bill would permit the president to peg prices of most articles and services at the highest prices of the two-weeks period preceding the start of the Communist invasion of South Korea.

It would allow him to curb consumer credit but not credit extended for real estate transactions, and would authorize the president to requisition commodities, but not facilities, needed for the defense effort.

It also would permit the president to peg wages, generally at the highest level during the two-weeks preceding the Korean war.

It does not contain any authority to control commodity exchanges.

Acheson Opposes Spanish Loan Rider

Washington, Aug. 2.—(P)—Secretary of State Acheson today opposed the senate's $100,000,000 Spanish loan "rider" to a pending ECA appropriation.

He told a news conference there were adequate funds for any justified Spanish loan already available in the Export-Import Bank.

He also said that the State Department had met with no success in efforts in recent months to persuade Spain to adopt a more Democratic government.

The senate yesterday added to legislation appropriating funds for European recovery a clause saying a $100,000,000 loan should be made to Spain through the Export-Import Bank.

TOT DIES IN CRASH

Pittsburgh, Aug. 2.—(P)—Three-year-old Vivian Powell died today in suburban General Hospital after an automobile crash which injured her parents. The child's father, Leo, 28, stenographer in the district attorney's office, and her 25-year-old mother were treated for head and arm injuries. Their car struck a guard rail.

TRUMAN ASKS FIVE BILLION IN NEW TAXES

President Urges Speed in Raising Levy to Help Pay For Rebuilding Defense Against Reds

ADOPTION ANTICIPATED

Washington, Aug. 2.—(P)—President Truman sent a new letter to congress today urging speed in raising taxes $5,000,000,000 to help pay for rebuilding America's defense against Communism.

The letter, addressed to Chairman George (D-Ga.), was read to the senate finance committee as it began consideration of the tax increases.

Mr. Truman's new communication arrived as demands were made in congress for an excess profits tax, aimed at "profiteering."

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) told reporters the president in his new letter, did not call for an excess profits levy now. "But he did not close the door on it," Brewster added.

George predicted quick passage of the $5,000,000,000 tax boosting bill, "substantially as submitted" by the president.

The bill, to buy more American fighting equipment, came up for closed-door consideration today by the senate finance committee which George heads.

He figured that the increased rates on corporations and individuals might raise $6,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 in the next year, instead of $5,000,000,000—because of the probable increase in national income.

The higher rate may be effective on incomes earned after Oct. 1. There is strong resistance in congress to the president's proposal that the increase be effective on all corporation income in 1950.

There was increasing clamor, meanwhile, for (1) broadening the (Turn to Page Five)

By The Associated Press

Tokyo, Aug. 2.—(P)—U. S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea announced tonight American 24th Division troops have recaptured the heights eight miles northeast of burning Chinju in the grim defense of the Allied Korean foothold.

The heavy battle of men and tanks was fought some 40 miles west of the main American seaport base of Pusan.

As it raged the American First Cavalry Division foot troops abandoned burning Kumchon on the central front of the long, twisting battleline. Kumchon is about 80 miles northwest of Pusan on the main road-rail supply lines.

Both developments followed the arrival of U. S. Marines in fighting force at a South Korean port, ready for battle.

Some American tanks were lost in the Chinju hills and American casualties were reported heavy.

American planes set fire to Kumchon as they had done at Chinju after it fell.

The 24th was almost surrounded by strong Red flanking forces. The Americans had counter-attacked to regain high ground they had lost Tuesday.

The Reds sidestepped them and attacked.

The American hill positions were described as good for defensive fighting.

Red pressure mounted on almost all fronts.

Senate Heads Toward Decisive Test On Bi-Partisan Drive to Cut Home Spending

Washington, Aug. 2.—(P)—The senate headed today toward a decisive test on a strong bi-partisan drive to cut home front spending. The idea is to provide more money, men and materials to check Communist aggression in Korea and elsewhere.

The first attempt to make a major across-the-board slash in the non-defense expenditures contained in the $34,688,000,000 appropriations bill for fiscal 1951 failed yesterday.

The senate shouted down an amendment offered by Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) which he estimated would slash one billion dollars off federal construction projects, supplies, materials, payrolls, travel and communications.

In contrast to the Douglas amendment, which found little advance support, the Bi-partisan cut proposed by Senator Bridges (R-NH) and Byrd (D-Va.) already has pledges of support from more than 30 senators.

The amendment calls for a ten per cent slash in almost all the non-defense items in the appropriations measure. Sponsors estimated it would save $800,000,000.

Although President Truman has asked administration forces to junk it, Bridges has predicted it will get the almost unanimous support of Republicans and enough aid from Democrats to insure passage.

Similar "economy" moves launched earlier this session have gained considerable drive only to be counted out when it came time for a vote.

RECOVER BODIES OF DROWNING ACCIDENT

Kittanning, Aug. 2.—(P)—The bodies of three members of an Evans City family who drowned when their boat drifted over a spillway Sunday have been found in the Allegheny river.

Discovered floating about three miles below the dam today were the bodies of Richard P. Milbert, 49, and his son, Lawrence, 12. Last night the body of Milbert's other son, Ralph, 9, was recovered.

Three other members of the family were rescued when their boat swung over the dam at Lock No. 9 near Rimer.

Pres. Truman's Vote Getting Ability In Home State Is Receiving Severe Test

By The Associated Press
President Truman's vote getting ability in his home state of Missouri was receiving a severe test today as his candidate lagged in the Democratic senatorial primary race.

The man Truman supported, State Senator Emory W. Allison of Rolla was about 9,000 votes behind former U. S. Rep. Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., of St. Louis with only 557 precincts to be counted.

And in the neighboring state of Kansas Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate for president in 1936 apparently was losing his campaign to regain control of the state party organization.

Other primaries, for candidates for the house of representatives, were held in Virginia and West Virginia with no national issues at stake. All members of the house were re-nominated.

In Kansas Landon supported Willard Mayberry, his secretary when Landon was governor, against Edward F. Arn, former

COURT RULES AGAINST ATTORNEY GENERAL

Pittsburgh, Aug. 2.—(P)—The Allegheny county court gave District Attorney William S. Rahauer a victory today in his fight with a state official over which shall investigate the free work case.

Three judges unanimously refused to allow Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti to step into the probe with a grand jury.

The court opinion ruled he had "abused his discretion in supervising the (Allegheny county) district attorney," who also plans a grand jury investigation.

Margiotti had charged Rahauer is unfit to conduct an investigation of the Democratic organization to which he belongs.

Margiotti has said he would appeal the court's decision to the state supreme court if he lost.

A group of Penn State forestry students, headed up by Jim Nelson of Ludlow, have started salvaging an estimated seventeen cords of Japanese larch pulpwood from ice damaged trees on the Hoffman Farm larch plantation south of Ludlow. This is the first commercial cut of trees from plantations on the Allegheny National Forest.

This plantation of larch was planted in a pure stand in 1933 by CCC labor. Ten years later the larch swiftly threatened to destroy the plantation, but the attack was stopped in its tracks by prompt spraying with a marine pump using a mixture of arsenate of lead and blue vitriol.

Then came the ice storm last February and 215 trees had the tops broken out, or were tipped over, by the weight of the ice in this small plantation.

One of the best ways to become a forester is to work at the grass roots level, and when I asked Jim Nelson if he would consider taking out a pulpwood sale for this material during the peeling season he decided to enter the pulpwood game in a small way.

One of the trees felled measured nearly ten inches on the stump and yielded six pulpwood bolts. The total height of this 17 year old tree was 40 feet, or an average height growth in excess of two feet per year. In one three-year period this tree grew at the rate of one inch in diameter per year.

Compare this growth with that indicated by the annual rings on a suppressed hemlock stump I recently examined which showed a diameter growth of only seven inches in its first 133 years of life. However, following release this same hemlock grew two inches in one four-year period, or half as fast as the Japanese larch.

It is of which demonstrates that even our slow growing native hemlock can put on very good growth if given the opportunity to do so by the application of repeated light cuts which remove competition from the crop trees.

A commercial thinning, in the larch plantation, designed to remove undamaged material will probably be made next year. This thinning will remove a substantial portion of the stand, leaving plenty of growing space for the remaining trees. The annual rings on material being cut now indicate a falling off of growth due to crowding, and since the limbs on most of the trees have already died to a height in excess of the first sixteen foot log the time is ripe for pruning of the crop trees which will be left after thinning to form the ultimate saw-log crop.

By pruning these dead limbs on crop trees, early in the game, high quality knot free materials will be produced during the rest of the life of the plantation.

Youngsville Fair Plans Under Way

Youngsville, Aug. 2.—The Community Fair committee and officials are planning some unusual events this year. There is much local interest in horse shows, as was proved by the recent fine show sponsored on Island Park by the Warren Shrine organization, which was very well attended. One special fair attraction to be seen for the first time in this section of the country will be "The White Horse Revue." For this feature, 25 beautiful albino horses will be put through many kinds of marvelous riding entertainment by young riders trained from childhood in skillful riding. Cal and Ruth Thompson are the owners of the White Horse Range of Naper, Neb.

The committee is planning a number of other new features for this year's Community Fair, now only about a month away.

The Fair will provide the usual opportunities for exhibitors and invite all who can to bring their best exhibits.

Board of Health Issues Statement On Quarantines

The following statement has been issued at the office of the Board of Health concerning violations of quarantine for communicable diseases:

As there have been numerous violations of quarantine for communicable diseases, resulting, in some instances, in arrests and fines for these violations the Warren Board of Health is asking for the full co-operation of those responsible in the prompt reporting of all communicable diseases and abiding by the quarantine laws as designated by the health authorities.

According to the state laws and the Warren Borough ordinances all communicable diseases are reportable and quarantinable and such reports must be made by the physician in charge, the parents, the schools, or anyone responsible for the person having a communicable disease.

All communicable diseases in Warren Borough are not only reportable and quarantinable but are placarded as well, with the exception of German (3-day) measles, and this latter disease, although not placarded, must be reported and quarantined as any communicable disease. Therefore those responsible for a patient having a communicable disease in Warren Borough must report that disease to the Warren Board of Health.

Japan, seeking ideological rehabilitation amidst the ruins of her defeated military oligarchy, is beginning to turn towards things spiritual.

This fact is emphasized by the current visit in America of some sixty Japanese leaders—political, business and labor—who are on their way home after attending a moral rearmament conference in Caux, Switzerland. Vice President Barkley made an address of welcome to them in Washington at the weekend, and Chojiro Kuriyama, member of the Japanese Diet, addressed the senate.

I had a chat with Mr. Kuriyama in New York and he confirmed that a spiritual movement was under way in his country.

Nippon has been suffering from a low wave of morality. She lost her old ideology in military defeat and the post-war years found her with nothing to take its place.

The result of this ideological vacuum was that Communism rushed in and took advantage of the situation. After all, Communism did at least have a concrete ideology to offer, and plenty of arguments to back it. The result was that many Japanese students turned to the Red ism, lacking anything better.

This proved a potent challenge to Japanese leaders who had no use for Communism and saw that held, must not leave the quarantined premises without the consent of the health authorities.

they must arm themselves with new ideals if they were to compete with Communism. That was the position when the ideology of moral rearmament began to register in Japan.

M. R. A. stands for absolute moral standards of honesty, purity, unselfishness and love; obedience to the guidance of God, and adequate time daily to find out what it is; the fight for sound homes, clean business and politics; and management-labor team-work to produce an abundant economy for all. One of the cardinal tenets of M. R. A. is that one can get specific guidance from God if it is sought.

Mr. Kuriyama said that when the party of sixty departed for the M. R. A. meeting in Caux, the prime minister told them to bring back something new. Well, they think they found "something new" in this spiritual ideology, and Kuriyama told me they were going to encourage its spread, and to build a new leadership through the universities.

Kuriyama appeared to be putting his new ideology into practice when, in addressing the senate, he said:

"It is our sincere regret that Japan has broken almost a century-old friendship between the two countries. In spite of this big mistake on our part, the magnanimous forgiveness and generosity of America not only allowed Japan to survive but is helping our recovery."

ENLISTMENT REMINDER

The mental requirements for voluntary enlistments into the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force have been substantially lowered according to Cpl. Meach of the local U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station in Warren. Cpl. Beach stated that this will undoubtedly result in the enlistment of a greater number of individuals who might not have been able to qualify under the extremely high standards previously in effect. For the convenience of volunteers, the local recruiting station will remain open on Monday from 8:30 to 7:30 and on Wednesday from 8:30 to 7:30.

GREEN PASTURE TOUR

The annual Warren County Green Pasture Tour was held July 26th. The first farm visited was the W. C. Leofsky farm at Garland, and then the tour continued to the Lottsville Methodist Church where lunch was served to the 100 persons attending. The sponsor was Harold Geiger of the U. S. Soil Conservation District Service with remarks by Andy Donick and Paul Redfield. After lunch the Arvid Gruber farm at Lander and the Robert Johnson farm on Yankee Bush were visited. These three farms had the best pastures judged out of 28 applications. W. C. Leofsky was judged County winner by the following judges: W. E. Fehman, Max Larsen and Richard Trisket.

REASONABLE QUESTION FROM GI'S

Our defense officials are being jumped on because U. S. troops in Korea had to begin fighting without tanks, tank-killing bazookas and other useful weapons. But that's not all they failed to provide the GI's.

They didn't tell them why they have to fight in Korea. American soldiers were sent packing off to a strange country of which they know little, with no guidance but a few hasty mutterings about "communism."

Now reports come filtering back that many of our fighting men resent being thrown into a fight they don't understand. Furthermore, not having been briefed on what makes a Korean tick, they're showing a lot of impatience and mistrust toward their allies.

Since nationalism burns bright among Koreans as among all Asiatics, the natives don't like being shrugged off as a bunch of inferiors. They're beginning to cool off toward their would-be saviours, and in time may become actively hostile.

One can guess what the top military men would say about this: "Nobody told us we'd ever have to fight in Korea." They've already said it to explain why they weren't set for the sort of war we're fighting there.

But that answer isn't good enough. A good many expert judges declare we did a bad job of telling GI's in World War II why they had to fight in Europe.

Do our present-day soldiers have a real idea what they're supposed to be doing in occupied Germany, in Austria, Trieste and Japan? They know their military duties, of course. But they don't get much helpful talk on why they're thousands of miles from home.

On the basis of past performance, there's little reason to believe the GI's would have been briefed any better if the military knew they were heading for Korea.

As Bruce Blossard says in an editorial written for NEA Service and the Times-Mirror, it looks like the military either don't know how to teach the political facts of life, or can't see their importance. Our soldiers in Korea might as well be men from Mars for all they know of that country. And they could be forgiven for thinking Karl Marx, the father of communism, plays third base for the Cincinnati Reds.

It's too late to prevent the harm done by their lack of good guidance up to now. But since the top brass has at last turned attention to giving the GI some hardware to fight with, maybe they can devote a little thought to telling him sensibly why he has to use the stuff.

THIS CIVILIZED AGE

Ever so often we find ourselves thinking about how old we're getting. We look back—and it seems ages ago—to the days when the top of every flagpole was tenanted, marathon dancers grew bunions and men went over Niagara Falls in barrels.

Never again, said we, will we see such silly days. We're growing up.

Well, here we are 20 years later. In just the past few weeks a man tried to go over the falls in a barrel; a soldier made 123 parachute jumps in one day. There are a few scattered flag-pole sitters and one young fellow is living in a glass-topped steel tank under water—if you can call that living.

And the newest thing in this sane age comes from a 38-year-old deep sea diver. He wants to take a 14-mile walk under water—a 20-hour jaunt.

We should all be glad we're not living in those foolish days almost a quarter of a century ago. People surely did some silly things then, didn't they?

THE WAR HITS HOME!

Realization that the nation may be on the brink of a full scale war is brought home to this and other communities in the area by announcement from Washington that the 28th Division, including Warren's Company I, 112th Infantry along with others in the district, has been called for active duty within thirty days.

There were doubtless many relatives and friends in the large crowd assembled at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot last Friday evening when the unit boarded the special train for Indiantown Gap, who were there with hearts made heavy by fears and apprehensions that the Company would be called into active service before it was mustered out. Orders restricting information on the size of the unit and other details about the movement to camp, had been received during the week, and it was for this reason that the Times-Mirror did not print the roster and other information as has been the custom in the past.

Here And There

Here's another of those self-explanatory communications we are always happy to receive because we can make them serve a double purpose. In the first place they are wonderful "column fillers," and secondly, we have a feeling those who send them in are convinced they will help in the particular project mentioned, and that, of course, is most important. "To the Editor of Here and There: Would appreciate a plug in your column for the ice cream social being staged on Glen Elliott's lawn in Pleasant township Thursday evening. Am sure many townfolk would avail themselves of the opportunity to motor out our way for this ice cream treat with generous slices of delicious home-baked cake to be enjoyed leisurely in a comparatively rural atmosphere located on the Pleasant township highway a few houses south of the Grange hall. Former mention in your column of our activities have proven unusually fruitful.—Signed, Member Ladies

Auxiliary, Pleasant Volunteer Fire Department.

Fifty years ago stress was laid more on appearance and dignity than personal comfort and enjoyment, according to the following paragraph taken from the Evening Mirror of August 3, 1900: "An innovation, perhaps more comfortable than refined, is sought to be introduced here. It is nothing less than attending dances and tripping the light fantastic in one's shirt sleeves. It would seem as if a ball room ought to be the last place in the world for a young man to appear without his coat. It savors too much of cornishings, and barn raisings, to see a man with a big pair of suspenders and a surcingle cavorting around a ball room. The practice might be all right at a picnic, but it will not meet with favor among people of culture and refinement."

Senators Get an Earful From Baruch—And Love It

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Elder statesman Bernard Baruch came to Washington to shove a ramrod down the back of Congress, and darn near worked a miracle. He made all-out mobilization converts of Republican senators like Homer Capehart of Indiana, John Bricker of Ohio and Ralph Flanders of Vermont.

They found themselves agreeing in principle with the white-haired, white linen-suited Baruch.

Mr. Baruch came to Washington to testify on President Truman's proposed "Defense Production Act of 1950." Mr. Baruch has been demanding adequate defense preparedness and stand-by legislation for over 30 years—ever since he was mobilization director in World War I. This time it was no different. He testified to the effect that the President's plan is too little and too late. "This bill," he said, "refuses to lock the barn even after the horse has been stolen."

"It seems like my hearing aid is out of order and I'm hearing things I heard before," he said, in referring to objections to all-out mobilization at this time. They were raised oddly enough, by the Democratic senators—Walter Dill of Illinois, J. Allen Frear of Delaware and Willis Robertson of Virginia. They thought the country wasn't ready to accept all-out mobilization. Baruch's idea was that the people were way ahead of Washington on this score.

"Is Congress behind in its thinking?" asked Republican Sen. Irving M. Ives of New York. "I think so," replied Baruch. "Rome was a great power," he told Senator Douglas, "but the people were softened by crises. When they rebelled, they cut off the heads of their senators."

"We should make taxes higher than a cat's back," said Baruch. "Higher than a high cat's back," corrected Senator Douglas. Other points Baruch advocated were: General price and wage controls, rolled back to June 25. Continued rent controls, which he called, "grabbing a porcupine by the tail." A single mobilizing agency of government. Control over industrial production as there is now control over manpower through the draft law. Postponement of less essential spending. Strengthening of the United Nations. More rearmament assistance to foreign countries.

Senator Bricker called it "complete regimentation," but said, "I agree that these things ought to be done because they weren't done in the last war, and we had inflation."

"The thing I fear," said Bricker, "is mediocrity."

"The only vote I ever regret," said Senator Flanders, "was a party measure to lower taxes in the 80th Congress."

"If you have only one thing to regret," said Mr. Baruch, "you're lucky."

from a paper of fifty years ago that should interest the women in Pleasant township in charge of the event mentioned at the head of this column today: "At the reunion of the Centennial committee, at Hazlehurst" in Pleasant township tomorrow afternoon, a stove and coffee pot will be furnished for those who desire to make coffee. Hitchhiking posts have also been set for the convenience of those who go over in carriages."

... Over in Titusville when a driverless dump truck loaded with six tons of coal ran wild for 800 feet down the treacherous South Franklin street hill Monday, until it tipped off its rear wheels and overturned, the driver, W. L. Hemberger, 28, of Hawthorne, Clarion county, jumped clear, and escaped with a skinned elbow, had something to be thankful for. His remark to bystanders as he viewed the wreckage needs no further comment. He said: "Last Monday, Tuesday and Thursday I made this trip with a six-ton load. My two kids were along on those trips but they stayed home today. Boy, am I glad!"

Members of the Oil Festival committees of Titusville are hard at work on plans for the VFW oil birthday celebration the week of August 21-27. ... Don't forget to send mail to the boys with the Warren National Guard company in camp. The official address is—"Company I, 112th Infantry, 28th Division, Indiantown Gap, Military Reservation, Annapolis, R. D. 2, Pennsylvania."

Warren merchants are warned to be on the lookout for a couple smoothies who pulled the shortchange racket on at least two drug stores in Kane the first of the week. For some reason or other the stunt misfired in a third drug store the man visited. It was the same old routine—a busy waitress and the $20 bill. As she returned with the change, the man took it, then said, "Here, I found 50 cents, you need the change more than I do," and politely insistent hands back the money the girl just gave him in return for the $20. The "artist" meanwhile, has slipped out $10, although the money she has just counted out was in plain sight—that is, almost all of it. ... We did not print the roster of Company I last week prior to leaving for Indiantown Gap because the officers of the company interpreted an order received from the commanding general as prohibiting publication of the strength of any National Guard units. We were willing to cooperate with the Guard Company officers, in spite of the fact that papers printed in towns adjacent to Warren did use names and numbers in publicity pertaining to Guard units leaving for camp.

Morning Roundup: It now develops that the fact that he and his wife are spending a week in Birmingham, Ala., was probably the reason that Ray Caldwell, former Yankee pitcher, did not participate in the Old Timers' game here last Saturday. A "Caldwell Day" had been arranged by Birmingham baseball fans. ... A patron of the Library theater, who was not identified, loaned an original "Winchester 78" rifle to Manager Sarvis during the showing of the picture by that name. ... Work of setting the curbing on the north side has been started on the St. Clair street widening project.

Men and Tanks Fighting Battle Forty Miles West Of U. S. Seaport Base

first cavalrymen offered stubborn resistance "to each North Korean attack."

The communists said South Koreans were battling for Yongdok on the east coast anchor of the battle line. But the city, once reported in southern hands, belonged to "neither side."

The Marines came loaded for heavy combat. They are going into battle behind hulking M26 tanks weighing 45 tons and carrying 90 mm. guns. There has been nothing like that fighting on the American side thus far.

BULLETIN

Washington, Aug. 2—(P)—Defense Department spokesmen today described the overall Korean situation as "improving." But briefing officers said the situation is "still serious and may one would be foolish to indicate anything else."

They said late military reports clearly indicate the Red Koreans are "throwing everything they have" in the drive for Pusan.

The Marines also carry flame-throwers and the new tank-killing bazookas.

The situation was both grim and in the nick-of-time tradition of Marine landings.

The thrusting and enveloping North Koreans on the Chingju front broke into flat ground that stretches to the main U. S. road-rail supply lines and to Pusan itself.

On their arrival, the Marines got orders for a quick rush into battle. They ranged from teenagers to grizzled veterans.

The North Korean Communists were punching eastward toward Pusan, the main U. S. seaport base 55 miles due east of Chingju.

American casualties in the southeast were heavy. Associated Press Correspondent O. H. P. King reported from the battlefield that numerous U. S. wounded were evacuated to the rear.

General MacArthur called the mounting battle the most critical of the war.

A spokesman at his headquarters said the enemy efforts had been checked but not stopped.

U. S. Sherman tanks with 76 mm. guns supported the Americans near Chingju.

Planes with bombs, rockets and machineguns hunted out assembling Communist forces, including many tanks in the Chingju area.

Naval and aerial forces hit the two southern ports of Mokpo and Yosu, supply bases for the Communists behind the big push in the southeast.

British and South Korean naval units destroyed warehouses and supplies at Mokpo.

In 500 sorties—the biggest day yet for air power in the Korean war—U. S. planes hit chemical and metal plants in North Korea and destroyed seven tanks, 45 trucks and three artillery positions in the forward battle areas.

About the time field dispatches reported the beginning of the American counterattack northeast of Chingju, MacArthur's operational summary reported considerable movement of Communist troops there.

bill to strike a withering blow at profiteering, (2) for financing the current resistance to Communist aggression on a pay-as-you-go basis, and (3) for slashing non-defense government spending to the bone.

The tax plan submitted by Mr. Truman would:

1. Increase the income tax of individuals by as much as 20 per cent in some brackets.
2. Increase corporation taxes by $1,500,000,000. This would be done by putting the corporation rates at 25 per cent on the first $25,000 of net income and 45 per cent on net income over $25,000.
3. Retain the revenue raising provisions of the $1,000,000,000 excise tax cutting bill that congress put aside when the Korean war began.

Keystone Division Has Long Record Of Military Service

The 28th Division, founded in October, 1917, gained the admiration of General Pershing as the "Iron Division" in World War I. It will be recalled that it was federalized for World War II service in February, 1941, at Indiantown Gap. Its embattled troops fought through Paris, the Siegfried Line and in Hurtgen Forest, the Ardennes and the Rhineland.

Company I also made history in World War I. It served with honor in the Spanish-American War participating in the battle of Cosmo under Captain D. F. A. Wheelock, also assisting in the capture of Ponce. In 1916 it was called to the Mexican border, under Captain C. E. Bordwell, spending seven months along the Rio Grande. In World War I the 117th Regiment went through the battles of Chateau Thierry, Fismes, and Fismette Forest, and the Woerze at Chateau Thierry the Pennsylvanians shared equally with the Marines in credit for saving Paris.

Keystone Division will be remembered most in World War Two as it's stand against nine crack German divisions during the battle of the Ardennes. This was German Field Marshal von Rundstedt's last bid to break the Allied line in what was later called the battle of the Bulge.

The Division suffered 25,310 casualties in World War Two, including 16,517 of them in battle. Those killed in action totaled nearly 2,000.

Malik Loses in Attempt To Bar China

The Russian deputy foreign minister, somewhat pale and speaking in a husky voice, denounced the Korean action in answer to insistence of U. S. delegate Warren R. Austin that the agenda give priority to a U. S. resolution designed to keep the Korean conflict from spreading.

The resolution was presented Monday at the last council meeting before Malik became president. Malik tried to out-manuever western powers on the council: First, by flatly declaring that Chinese Nationalist delegate T. F. Tsiang represented no nation and was illegally at the council table; and second, by trying to declare adopted his agenda which calls for seating the communist Chinese representative and for a "peaceful settlement" in Korea.

Austin raised his voice in sharp, angry challenge each time.

The first time, he was joined quickly by Britain and France.

THE MARKETS

New York, Aug. 2—(P)—The stock market made limited progress today. Most price changes were upward. Gains were small, however, and a variety of stocks backed down slightly. Airline issues, strong yesterday, edged up at the opening but quickly came to a full stop. Business started out briskly, then slowed after overnight orders were executed. A new issue made its debut and quickly improved. Allied Chemical new stock, traded on a when-issued basis, opened at 89 and soon edged up. Old American Chemical jumped 7 to 238 at one time. A four-for-one split of the stock has been approved. Higher elsewhere were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Lockheed, International Telephone, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Pan American Air, American Airlines, Eastern Air, United Air, and Trans World Air. Hanging back were Packard, Sears Roebuck, Caterpillar Tractor, Zenith Radio, Columbia Gas, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, and U. S. Gypsum. Price trends in the corporate bond market were cloudy. U. S. government held steady in over-the-counter dealings.

LAST CHANCE

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE

Chapter 6

HOW long "Rock" lay between consciousness and unconsciousness he couldn't say. But, suddenly, he seemed to know that he was in the hospital in Leesburg.

Feebly, he tried to raise himself from his pillow, only to fall back weak and exhausted. His head felt as if a whole tier-full of fans were pounding their fists into his skull.

How he had gotten there he didn't know. The last thing he remembered was trying to spear a high foul that was going into the stands.

A gentle hand, slim and cool, began to stroke his head and he heard the voice he thought he had been dreaming about say, "You impetuous, silly, hard-headed nincompoop! You must have been born under a lucky star. No man deserves the breaks you've been getting!"

With an effort he turned to stare up into the soft, blue eyes of Betty. "Hello," he started to grin. "Did we win?"

"Yes," she replied. "We won, but you lost."

"This is nothing," he managed to say between stanzas of the Anvil Chorus then being played inside his head. "I'll be on my feet by tomorrow."

That's what you think. Since when did you think that your head is harder than the railing around the ball park," she retorted. "Yes, we won this game, mister, but what are we going to do for a catcher for the next week? You'll be in no condition to play for at least that long!"

Her voice sounded like the tinkle of ice in a tall glass, like the first day he'd met her. But, somehow, "Rock" felt there was a difference. She didn't look him straight in the eye, for one thing, as she always had. Nor could she keep from blushing everytime she did look at him.

"Rock's" heart began to pound deeper and deeper, faster and faster. What was it he was trying to remember? A fleeting moment of consciousness, a bell-like voice calling him darling. The angel's face. Now he had it! Betty! It was Betty who had called him darling! All his doubts dropped away from him.

The look in her eyes must have warned her, yet she did not resist when he weakly, yet determinedly, grasped one of the hands stroking his brow and drew her down until he could look her square in the face.

"A million years ago," he said gently, "I heard an angel calling me 'darling.' It was the sweetest word I'd ever heard. Did you mean it, Betty? Could you go for a big luncheon like me?"

The look in her eyes was answer enough, but "Rock" picked up where he had left off. "I love you, Betty. I don't know why I was so long finding it out..."

But Betty would not let him finish. She drew down to kiss him gently on the lips. "Silly, I've always loved 'Rock' Thompson..." and hated you, too."

"Hated me?" "Rock's" jaw dropped. "I didn't know it was that bad. And I still don't know what you mean. You love me because you hated me. That doesn't make sense."

"Oh, doesn't it? Why wouldn't I hate you when I saw my idol letting himself run to fat without doing anything about it. Then, on the bus, you were so licked."

She paused, but only to give him a peck on the nose and grin. "You didn't think I'd noticed, how the men played for you, looked to you for leadership, and you just sat there like a goop. Why would I care one way or the other if I hadn't loved you so much I was—well, yes, ashamed for you, you—never-finish!"

She paused once again, but only to get a fresh start. "I'm ashamed of you right now, 'Rock,'" she blurted. "Why must you just lie there looking at me? Why don't you kiss me and make me shut up?"

"Rock" must have done a very thorough job of kissing her and shutting her up, for a few minutes later the doctor, glancing into the room, went into a series of throat clearing that must have been

Chapter 7

"MAKE 'Rock' manager," echoed Johnny, a look of astonishment on his face as he gazed down his outstretched leg in its plaster cast at his sister. "What a good manager the idea he'd make."

"I know he will, Johnny. Baseball's a funny game. It takes a man to manage a team. I can't get into the locker room with the men and plan strategy. They don't look up to me as they do to 'Rock.' He doesn't know it, but I know he was the one who straightened out this team. He's responsible for keeping us in the running. I feel, if given the chance, he'll make a great manager."

"We-a-l-I, I don't know, Sis. You've got a point there. Those ten years' experience in the big leagues will help, too." With a big grin on his face, Johnny concluded, "you can go back to being treasurer—and after all, he'll be in the family soon."

Her face aglow, Betty hastened to kiss her brother and say, "You'll never regret it, Johnny. I'm sure of that!"

When Betty returned to "Rock's" room, she found him, rather shy on his legs, but up and dressed.

"It's lucky for you that you're here," he said with a grin. "I was just going after you."

"On 'Rock,' should you be up so soon?" asked Betty as he took her in his arms.

"I'm fit as a fiddle, dearest. Just goes to show how well you've done your job of getting me into condition."

"Please sit down, 'Rock.' I want to talk to you," she said gravely.

"Okay, but only if you'll sit close to me," he pleaded.

Betty, without a word, sat down beside him, and twining her fingers through his, faced him.

"'Rock,' have you ever thought of what will become of you once your playing days are over?"

"Just like a woman," teased "Rock." "Afraid I won't be able to support you back of home plate the baseball writer, always able to take things in stride, were talking about everything but the news of 'Rock's' appointment. All except Reynolds of the Post Telegraph. He showed more interest in the situation out on the field than in the chit-chat going on in the booth. He stared toward-browed at "Rock" who was donning the catcher's gear. With a shake of his head, he crushed out his cigarette butt."

"What do you think, 'Dad,' he asked of Don Wilson of the Courier-Intelligencer, who was seated next to him.

Wilson, dean of the sports writers and affectionately known as "Dad" by the boys, punched a key on his typewriter, and hauled the carriage across for a paragraph space.

"Who, me?" he then asked.

"Yeah, you," Reynolds nodded without taking his eyes off "Rock." "What do you think, 'Dad'?"

Reynolds thoughtfully lit up a cigarette.

"Well, I don't know," he said finally. "The cost of living is rising up something fierce, but I doubt that it's due to our helping out those foreigners. After all, we only get half the actual truth, and—"

"Hey! Hold up on that stuff," Reynolds interrupted. "I mean him, down there."

"Who, son?" murmured the veteran ball scribe, turning his head to look at Reynolds.

Reynolds stabbed a finger down in the direction of "Rock." "I can 'Rock' Thompson. The new manager of the Lions. What do you think?"

"He's a very fine boy," the older man said quietly. "I'm very glad to see him get a chance to manage the Lions."

Reynolds sighed and leaned back in his chair violently.

"Fine words, indeed, Mister Wilson. Of course 'Rock's' a nice boy. And all nice about the inside of baseball. But most players learn in twenty years. Don't worry about 'Rock,' my friend. He'll do all right. It takes a special gift, and 'Rock' has it."

"Well," muttered Reynolds, "We'll see how he handles his players before passing judgment."

Plan To Announce Deferment Policies

Washington, Aug. 2—(P)—The Defense Department is expected to announce within 24 hours policies for deferment from military service of men in critical jobs and industries. The deferment rules would apply both to draftees and reservists.

Government sources said the Commerce Department will release a list of essential industries as a guide, and the labor department will issue a rather short list of "critical" occupations.

The military establishment, it was reported, will emphasize that the list are not guarantees of exemption from military service.

It will state, however, that the Armed forces intend to use men at their highest skills, whether in military or essential civilian roles, and to prevent any serious manpower drain on vital industrial crafts.

Excitement Follows Odd Chain of Events

Things were buzzing around the business district just before 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Borough police were busy clearing away a space for five buses for the School Boy Safety Patrol picnic in front of the Warren County Motor Club office when a large truck tire blew out with a terrific noise in the next block.

Seconds later, Warren's fire-fighting equipment rolled out and headed west. And to add to the excitement, an ambulance passed through the business section with its siren open.

The fire equipment was called to the DeLuxe Metal Furniture plant in the west end of town when a small fire started in the paint shop. The blaze is believed to have started from a welding torch, and employees put out the flames with a plant extinguisher. Damage was slight.

Lightning Strikes Oil Storage Tank

Titusville, Aug. 2—(P)—Lightning struck a 6,000 barrel oil storage tank at the Quaker State Refinery Tuesday, causing a minor explosion and fire.

Company officials said they expected to be able to salvage most of the $15,000 worth of crude oil stored in the tank. The explosion dented but did not tear off the top of the tank.

Firemen brought the fire under control within an hour.

Quaker State took over the refinery only yesterday from the Cities Service Company.

The lightning struck during severe electrical storms that lashed the Crawford County area.

For GOOD-ness Sake By Betty Rice

These being vacation days, perhaps many of you have had occasion to take inventory of your luggage stored in closet or attic. If so, did you happen to have an extra large suitcase and one small one? Here's why—The Children's Aid Society has a little boy who is departing in the very near future for the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf. He comes from a large family and although the Society has been able to supply the necessary clothing for his journey, he does need the suitcases. So how about it? If you have such an item please "For GOOD-ness Sake" call 92.

Would you trade 60 minutes for the rest of your lifetime? Would you give one-twelfth of something precious you possess in order to help make your neighbor live? Of course you could. Make an appointment now for the Warren County Red Cross chapter's Bloodmobile, visiting here on Thursday, August 10, from 10 a. m. till 4 p. m. You will spend 60 minutes there. You will give one pint, the equivalent of about one-twelfth of your blood. You will trade time and blood for life and health. Phone 2926 for your appointment. If you are unable to pledge a donation for August 10, call anyway and list your name for future blood collections.

A geyserite is a deposit that often forms around springs and geysers.

Perfume That Clings

Q—Dear Penny, I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.—Mrs. A. W.

A—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a Liquid Skin Sachet. It smooths on the skin very easily, and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance. Try this Houbigant Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $1.75 plus tax at Mullen Drug Co. (adv.)

Course In Ceramics

Many students in Warren High School will be interested in announcement that a course in ceramics is to be added in the art department in the fall term beginning in September. So many pupils have asked for the course, it is understood, that at first it will be limited to those students who have had at least one semester of art.

Mrs. Gerda Lawrence, high school art instructor, is currently at the Jane Sneed Studio in Bridgeport, Conn., studying and working with the newest glazes, underglazes and other phases of the art. She is also examining latest equipment for school work and experimenting with materials and molds that are not yet on the market.

Mrs. Lawrence is also visiting the studios of some famous Connecticut ceramists, examining their latest products and benefiting by their new ideas. Two Bridgeport studios visited are those of Martha Anne Hunter, who has converted an old barn into a studio, and that of Larry French, who combined photography and silk screen work with his ceramics.

Grandma's Rules Were Fine— But Not for Granddaughter

A LOT of the proverbs Grandma lived by, Granddaughter has now changed around to suit her own convenience. And the new rules worked as well for Granddaughter as the old rules worked for Grandma.

"Feed the brute" has been changed to, "Feed the brute's ego"—and the applesauce seems to work just as well as apple pie.

"Never put off till tomorrow what can be done today," has been twisted to, "Never do today what can be put off till tomorrow—and may eventually not have to be done at all."

Granddaughter has up and made nonsense of that old saw about a woman's work being never done.

Today the woman who can never catch up with her work can't console herself with that philosophy. She just has to admit she isn't as good a manager as she should be.

As for a woman's place being "in the home," well that's just a laugh to Granddaughter. She's revised that to read, "A woman's place is to keep in step with her husband and children and at the same time have some worthwhile and absorbing interests of her own."

MAN'S WORLD, PHOOEY!

GRANDMA was convinced it was a man's world. But Granddaughter isn't at all sure she can't do whatever she wants and get whatever she wants out of life if she puts her mind to it.

Grandma was a firm believer in saving the best for company. Granddaughter is just as firm a believer in getting the good out of everything the family owns by letting the family enjoy the best.

Grandmother firmly believed in "pick up" work, for she thought a woman's hands should never be idle. Granddaughter is far more concerned with using her mind when she has a little leisure time than is using her fingers to turn out fancy work.

Grandma's rules probably worked fine for her time and her needs. But Granddaughter's are just as practical for today's living.

GERMAN CARDINAL APPEALS FOR RETURN OF PRISONERS FROM RUSSIA

ARIZONA BOY SCOUT HAS FESTIVE BIRTHDAY IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

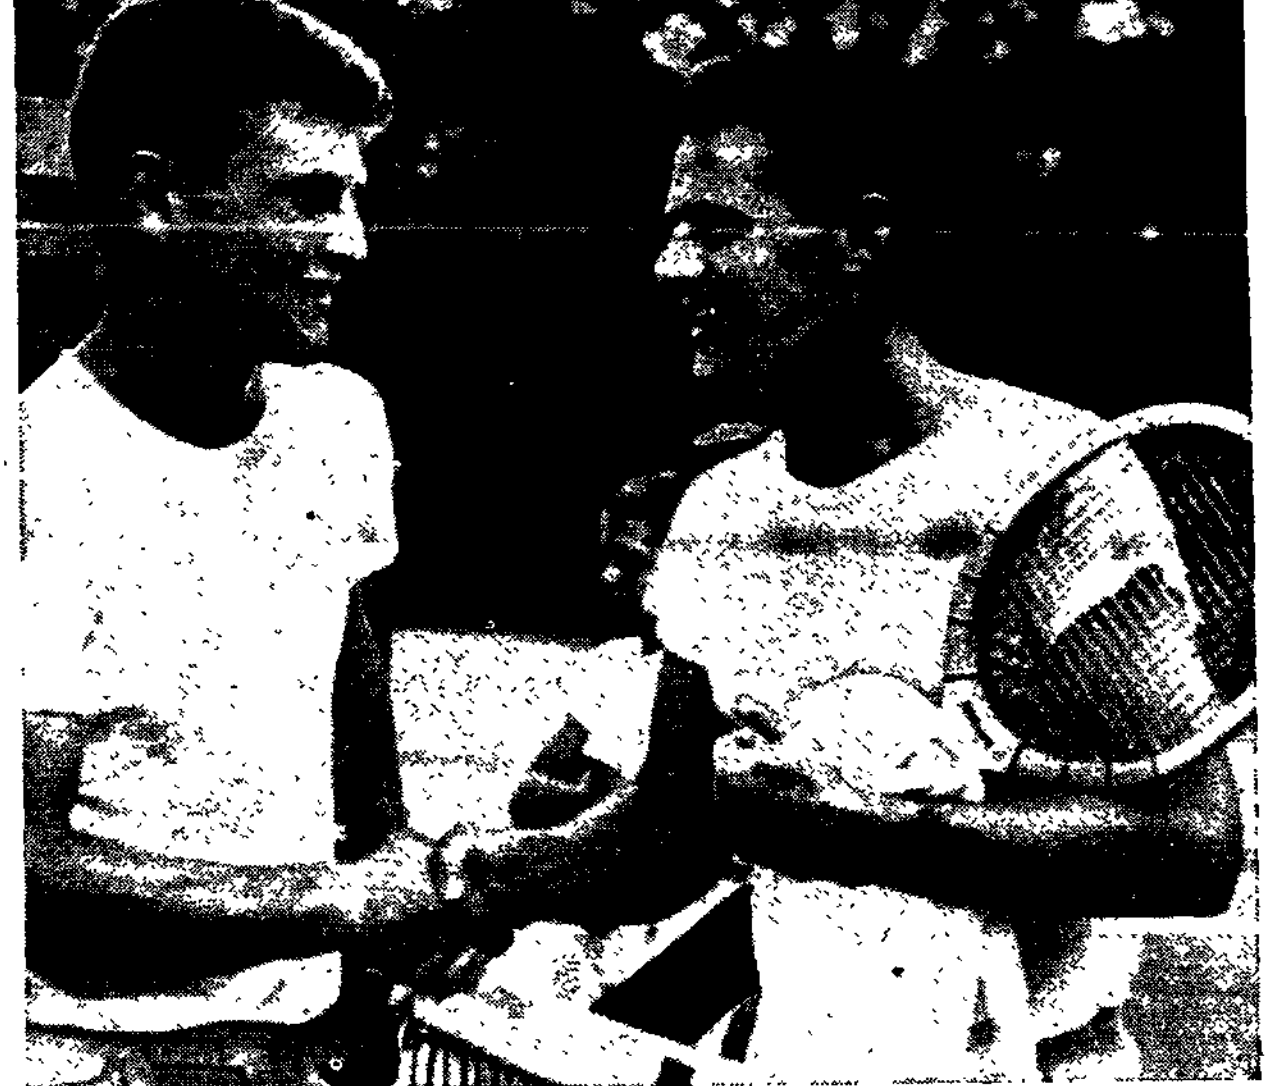

Copyright, 1950, by Acme Newspictures

WHERE DIVINE HELP IS NEEDED—About 25,000 persons crowd into an outdoor arena in the British sector of Berlin to hear Cardinal Count von Preysing appeal for the return of German war prisoners from the Soviet Union. The Cardinal urged that competent authorities do everything possible to facilitate the return of thousands of men held since the end of World War II.

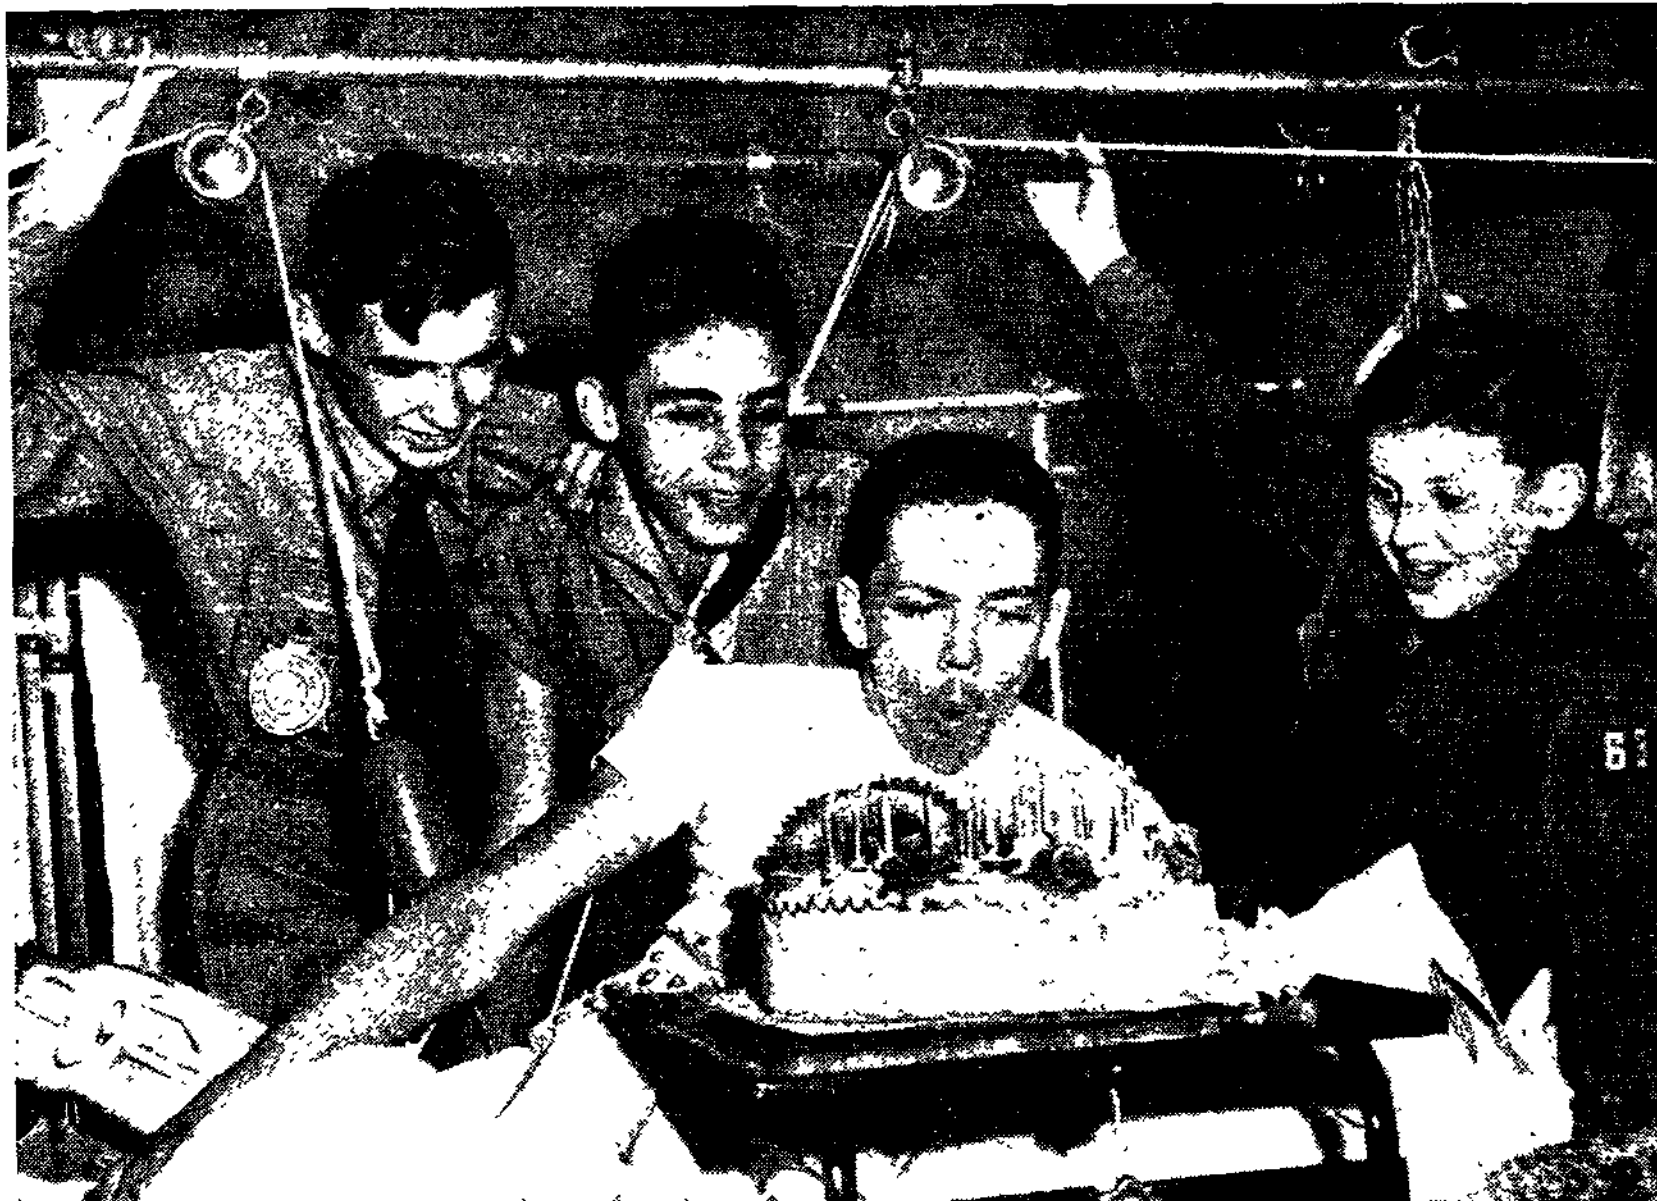

MAKING A COMEBACK—Manfred von Brauchitsch sits in the new type racing auto built by auto engineer Alex von Falkenhäusen, standing, in Frankfurt, Germany. Hoping to make a comeback in auto racing, Brauchitsch will race the auto in the International Auto Races at Nuerburging in the French Zone of Germany. He has taken part in many pre-war Grand Prix events.

FLAM BUOYANT OVER VICTORY—Herb Flam, left, 22-year-old National Intercollegiate tennis champion, receives congratulations from Ted Schroeder after defeating him to win the 40th annual National Clay Courts Tournament. The scores in the Chicago games were 6-1, 6-2 and 6-2.

SEVENTH ONE—A hospital nurse in Chicago, Ill., holds up tiny Dianne Marie Thommes for a close inspection. Diane, a five pound, 12 ounce newcomer to the world, is the seventh child born by Caesarean section to Mrs. Margaret Thommes.

NEXT BEST THING—Although Byron Lay, of Douglas, Ariz., had to celebrate his 16th birthday in a New York hospital, three of that city's scouts were on hand to share the occasion. Byron, center, was hit by a truck while visiting Manhattan en route to the Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa., last month. For his birthday, he was awarded the coveted bronze palm to add to his Eagle scout badge.

A DARLIN' OF A MARLIN—Louis Mowbray, curator of the Bermuda Government Aquarium, is gazing happily at the 254-pound blue marlin he caught near St. David's, Bermuda. That catch is nine feet, five inches long, with a girth of 48 inches. Mowbray holds the world record for bonefish in the six-thread class.

A GLAD HAND FOR HIM—Two South Korean children give Pfc. Joseph Whitaker, of Marinette, Wis., a friendly welcome after the 1st Cavalry Division made its successful beach landing near Pohang.

TOO LAZY TO JUMP OUT—These three pups are sweating out the summer heat near Statesville, N. C. The photographer squeezed them into that barrel, but they're just too hot to move.

SHE GOT THERE—When little Marion Diehl arrived in New York from Germany to join her mother and step-father, she didn't need to know any English. The tot had her immediate plans tied firmly around her neck, and that was enough.

FEELIN' FINE—In Spain to finish her new film, actress Ava Gardner can't resist the music being made by Nigel Patrick. Ava's co-starring in the nearly-finished picture with James Mason and will soon be back in Hollywood after a lengthy European trip.

Wertz Is Mainstay In Keeping Tigers On Top In A. L. Race

By The Associated Press

The sensational stick work of Wertz is keeping the Detroit Tigers on top in the pulse-pounding American League pennant race.

If Wertz hadn't picked this week to go on a 746 batting tear, he Tigers might be deep down in third place today instead of leading the field by one full game. His big bat has personally accounted for four Detroit triumphs in the Tigers' current home stand.

Tommy Byrne, an old Tiger, found the feat impossible last night. As a result the southpaw lost his first game of the season to the Tigers, who went on to whip the New York Yankees, 7-3, in the first of an all-important three-game series.

Wertz hammered two home runs and a single and drew a walk in four times at bat, to drive in three runs. The pair of four-baggers gave the 200-pound outfielder seven in five consecutive games. That tied a record set by Babe Ruth in 1921 and equaled by Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929.

Dizzy Trout, a last minute pitching replacement for ailing Art Shuman, turned in a masterful job in turning back the Yankees with six hits. He was behind only once when he served a two-run homer to Johnny Mize in the sixth. That gave the Yankees a short-lived 3-2 advantage. The Tigers' second back with five runs in their half of the sixth on Wertz' second homer and two-run singles by Johnny Ligon and George Kell, fourtman came up with a sore side muscle before he was to pitch.

Cleveland's third place Indians hot to within a game of second when they defeated Washington, 2-1. Jim Hegan paced the Tribe's 1-hit attack with a double, triple and home run. He battered in our runs.

The fourth place Boston Red Sox continued their domination over the St. Louis Browns with a 7-3 victory. Mel Parnell went the outs for his eighth triumph. Walt Dropp rapped three hits for the Red Sox, drove in two runs and took over the league's RBI lead with 101.

Billy Pierce pitched the Chicago White Sox to an easy 8-1 win over Philadelphia. Chico Carrasquel, cookie White Sox shortstop, extended his consecutive hitting streak through 20 games with a single and triple.

The National League race tightened when Brooklyn swept two games from Pittsburgh, 21-12 and 1-0 to close within three and a half games of the pace setting Philadelphia Phils. The Phils split pair with Cincinnati, winning the pener, 6-4, and losing the second, 1-0.

The Cardinals regained second place, three games off the pace, trashing the Boston Braves, 6-1. The defeat dropped the Braves to fourth place, one percentage point behind the Dodgers.

Rookie right-hander Cloyd Boyer paced six hits for his fourth Cardinal triumph. Boston's Earl Borgeson's consecutive hitting streak was snapped at 22 games.

Del Ennis smashed his fifth homer in six games and drove in two more tallies with a single to pace the Phils to their first game triumph as rookie Bob Miller notched his 10th win. Ewell Blackwell gave the Reds an even break with a four-bitter in the nightcap.

Army bound Curt Simmons, who flew in to pitch for Philadelphia after getting a special pass from the National Guard, was knocked out in the fourth inning. He was charged with his sixth defeat. He has won 14.

It took the Dodgers five weeks to get their June 24 victory over Pittsburgh in the official records. But they finally did it last night when they concluded the suspended game prior to playing their regularly scheduled one.

Erv Falica allowed only five hits in the regular game. A homer by Pete Castiglione deprived him of a shutout.

The scheduled game between the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs was postponed by rain.

Field and Stream Club Drafts Many Activities for Field Day

Warren Field and Stream Club's annual Field Day will this year be a Friday evening and Saturday affair instead of a Sunday event as in past years. The dates this year are August 25 and 26. The change from Sunday was the wish of the majority of club members, who felt that this popular Field Day had in recent years attracted too many people to continue it as a Sunday affair. It is hoped that the public will appreciate the change also—and support the activity as in years past.

This year the event will feature on Friday night a balloon ascension and parachute drop by Claude Schaeffer of Indianapolis, and a demonstration of Judo, Ju-jitsu, and self defense by John Dahler and partner. On Saturday, Jim Levak of the Genesee Brewing Company (formerly with Winchester Arms) will give a demonstration of accuracy, trick and fancy shooting both with rifles and shotgun. Jim will be remembered by many Warrenites as the man who put on a thrilling performance at Wilder Field on that memorable day when the field was dedicated. His is an outstanding act. Also on Saturday there will be a demonstration of power saws and wood-lot timbering equipment by H. H. Lyons, a representative of Homolite Power Saws. His demonstration will be of much interest to those members owning woodlots or timbered land. Dan Ryan will be back again representing the Pennrod Company and will spend the entire day instructing in the use of all types of rods and reels. Dan is a wizard of rod and reel and last year gave many of the local Waltonians much worthwhile information. A balloon ascension and parachute drop will close the day.

Eight ponies will be on hand for the entertainment of children under 12 years of age. They will receive free pony rides to the full extent of keeping the eight ponies busy. The ponies will not be available to other children on any basis.

A new display will feature live trout from the Farnsworth Rearing Station which the club feels particularly proud of since they were chiefly responsible for getting this station re-opened. The display will contain all three species of trout found in Warren County waters—Brown, Brook, and Rainbow.

Shooting activity will include Skeet, (which will be non-competitive except as groups arrange their own competition), a competitive 38 Calibre pistol match open to anyone with a percentage purse to the three high scores, a .22 Cal. luck shoot, Shoot the B, and possibly a running deer shoot for high calibre guns. In all shooting events those participating may bring their own guns and shells—or the committee will supply guns and shells.

Archery will be featured with both luck and skill shoots and here again the participants may use their own equipment or use equipment which will be available on the grounds.

The Forestry display and the Wildlife Display will again be featured and in the wildlife display will be a pen of Ringneck Pheasants from the 300 birds the Club is raising for release this Fall.

Skill and Luck games will be available for all to play, and ample tables and benches will be on the grounds for the weary and the hungry.

Naturally when these sportsmen throw a party the center of attraction is Fox Hole Inn—with those delicious hamburgs in steamed rolls—and good coffee. For those not quite so hungry there will be ice cream and pop.

Again this year the event will be held at Wilder Field, admission and parking are free—as are all of the exhibits. The general public is invited to both days of the event to share in the fun with the Club's members.

STYLE SHOP WINS

The Style Shoppers drubbed the State Hospital, 23-3, in a one-sided Indus... Softball League clash at the State Hospital softball field last night. Bob Check was the winning pitcher, and also clouted one of the victors' three home runs. Elmer Baldensperger smacked three hits in four trips to the plate and tallied five runs.

BUOS SIGN THREE

Pittsburgh, Aug. 2—(AP)—Pittsburgh Pirate farm clubs have signed three 19-year-old ballplayers. To are pitchers—Charles Kreger of Marketon, Pa., and Robert A. Veach of Nashville, Tenn. Kreger signed with the Salisbury club of the North Carolina State League and Veach with Waco, Tex., of the Big State League. The third is J. Roy Herald of Donelson, Tenn., a shortstop who will play for Salisbury.

Rain also shortened the Hamilton-Jamestown game to five innings, with Hamilton winning 7 to 1. Tom Keating picked up his seventh win for the Cardinals.

The Batavia Clippers edged the Wellsville Senators 3 to 2 behind the four-hit pitching of Walter Harr.

THE SCOREBOARD

TV Made Wrestling, Intends To De-emphasize Big Ten

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Big Ten football games will not be televised this fall, so John S. Meck says the old wheel is headed for bush-league classification.

Television will unmake the Western Conference just as it made wrestling and the roller derby, according to Meck, who, as you may suspect, is interested in the business in a large way.

Meck seems quite certain that the roughest college league of them all will rapidly disintegrate into a Little Ten, composed entirely of high-brows like Chicago.

The California schools and some others will be happy to know this. Meck sees public attention being drawn away from the Western Conference as millions watch the teams of other schools play and become fans.

"This will mean that good high school players will gradually be attracted to the schools with the biggest public support," he says. "The Big Ten will lose the supply of talent it has always attracted."

No more big tackles for Minnesota. No more passers and punters for Michigan. No more bollermakers for Purdue. No more accomplished ends for Ohio State. No more fleet backs for Illinois. No more hoosiers for Indiana, etc.

According to Meck, the compliance committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association will have absolutely nothing to do in what has been its biggest belt.

NOT even the Little Brown Jug and the Old Oaken Bucket are going to do the poor Big Ten any good without TV. And when the coaxial cable is completed, people no longer will be interested in Michigan and Minnesota and Michigan and Ohio State. College of the Pacific no doubt will be the big thing in midwestern pubs and parlors.

The ball-handler down under in the T & a Doc Blanchard-type fullback no longer will be important. With the screen test supplanting the athletic tryout, and approved by the compliance committee, the main idea will be to get a nation-wide sponsor.

But meanwhile I wouldn't advise John S. Meck to send one of his camera crews against Michigan.

And video or no video, he'd better apply now if he wants to see Michigan and Minnesota at Ann Arbor in 1951.

There might still be a chance to get one behind the goal posts.

CHICAGO—(NEA)—Talk of Chuck Dressen being named manager of the White Sox this fall is further indication that this easily could be a record year for managerial changes.

The Chicago Americans cut the pattern dismissing Jack Onslow, and what is likely to be a top turnover really was off to a running start when Joe McCarthy walked out on the Red Sox.

There appears to be as much jackrabbit in the pilots as there is in the pill.

At this still rather early date, only four of the 18 major league bosses are classed as certain repeaters. They are the Braves' Billy Southworth, the Phillies' Eddie Sawyer, the Cubs' Frank Frisch and the Senators' Bucky Harris.

THAT leaves only one in the American, where Casey Stengel several times and in as many directions has hinted that he doesn't choose to run the Yankees again.

The Indians are making a grand scramble for it all, but winning the world championship Lou Boudreau failed to sell himself as a manager to Bill Veeck. Reduced to a part-time worker, the AL's erstwhile Mr. Shortstop is an expensive bit of bric-a-brac to the new deal.

It is lamentable that protracted ill health may force the brilliant Red Rolfe to turn the Tigers over to someone else.

Although Irish, efficient and extremely popular, Steve O'Neill could be a stopgap on the American League side in Boston.

Connie Mack will call it a career—and then some—after 30 years as the only manager the Athletics ever had.

Anything can happen at any time in the case of Zack Taylor and the poor relations who are the Browns.

Burt Shotton of the Dodgers is being second-guessed more than any other handler.

If the Cardinals fall short for the fourth consecutive year, Eddie Dyer, a big man in Texas, easily could become fed up with the situation.

The Giants are slow to move, but Leo Durocher remains highly explosive, and the way things are going the Polo Grounds can get to be a very lonely place for the manager.

Bill Meyer is sick and disgusted in Pittsburgh.

The Cincinnati club fires managers instead of obtaining help, as Luke Sewell's position must be considered vulnerable.

Well, a baseball manager asks for it, doesn't he?

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

OPPONENTS SET BY A STRATEGIC LEAD

BY OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service. Choosing the correct card to lead from a suit is not always a matter of remembering something that you have seen in a text book on contract bridge. The opening lead, to be sure, since it is often largely a matter of guesswork, must conform as a general rule to the accepted practice.

After the dummy has gone down, however, a great deal more information is available. The defenders can often get better results by studying the cards they see and choosing a card to fit the exact situation than by following a general rule.

When this hand was played in a recent team-of-four match, the bidding was the same at both tables; and in both cases, West opened the nine of clubs. In both cases, declarer won and immediately led the king of diamonds to set up that suit.

Each East player immediately took the ace of diamonds and returned a heart. It was at this point that the sheep were separated from the goats.

In one room the East player made the conventional return of the deuce of hearts. Declarer properly played a low heart and West won with the queen. Now West could take his ace of hearts and his ace of spades, if he wished to do so, but no more. The defense could win only four tricks.

When the hand was played in the other room, East decided that the defense was hopeless unless several heart tricks could be won. This would be possible only if his partner had three or more hearts headed by the A-K or A-Q. Even if West had this type of holding, however, it was necessary for East to make the most of his one chance to lead.

After analyzing the situation in this way, this East player returned the jack of hearts!

The declarer in the second room was hopeless against this defense. If he put up the king of hearts, West would take the ace and queen and follow with the eight of hearts. East would overtake with the nine of hearts, and the defense would therefore make four heart tricks.

Ever if South played a low heart on East's jack, a heart continuation would assure the defenders three tricks in this suit. The ace of spades would then provide the setting trick.

All side shoots that grow where leaf joins main stem must be pinched off, to prune tomato plants to a single stem.

For Biggest Tomato Yield Stake and Prune Plants

The largest crop of tomatoes possible in a given space is grown by staking the plants and pruning each to a single stem. This is easy to do, but not as easy as some beginners may think.

It does not increase the yield per plant, but reduces it. It enables more plants to be grown in small space, climbing instead of spreading out on the ground. But it calls for drastic pruning, as long as the plant develops and will fail rather messily if this pruning is neglected.

The space saved is indicated by the fact that plants pruned to a single stem can be spaced a foot apart, and double stem plants 21 inches apart, while most plants that lie on the ground require four feet each way.

This applies to varieties of normal vine growth, which are the only kind that should be staked and pruned. So-called determinate varieties, of which the stems stop growing after they reach a certain length, while the plant devotes all its energies to ripening the fruit which has set, should never be pruned, and get no benefit from staking, but they may be planted as closely as 18 inches apart, and allowed to spread on the ground. They bear a good early crop, but over a shorter season than the older, later varieties.

Keeping tomato plants pruned and tied to stakes or a fence needs constant attention. At the joint where each leaf grows on the main stem, a branch will develop, and this must be cut or pinched off before it is four inches long, otherwise its removal may weaken the plant. If allowed to grow, secondary branches will develop from it, and soon all effort to keep the plant within bounds will have to be abandoned. A few days' neglect of pruning may spoil the plants.

To grow a two-stem plant, select one branch coming from the main stem 10 inches above the surface, and allow that to grow. Both main stem and branch will have to be pruned regularly. Single stem plants can be supported by a heavy cord stretched from a suitable tall support, and anchored to the ground near the plant. The stem as it grows can be twisted about the cord.

Two-stem plants may be tied with soft twine, strips of cloth, raffia or special ties made of wire imbedded in paper strips. Use a loose loop around the stem, to avoid constriction, or cutting.

Tomatoes require full sun and regular watering. When the soil is allowed to dry out, with fruit set, a black decay spot known as "blossom-end rot" may develop on the fruit. Watering during dry spells will prevent this. When fruit begins to mature, plant food worked into the soil around the plant, using a tablespoonful at a time, will help produce more and larger fruit.

Tomato roots spread out near the surface and should never be disturbed. Never cultivate deep enough to touch them, a heavy mulch of straw or lawn clippings about each plant is better than cultivation, and helps keep the soil moist.
